INDIA RUBBER GOODS.

THE CONGRESS PIRATED.—CAUTION TO SHOE Dealers.—Learning that some unprincipled persons are effering Elastic Gore to manufacturers of my Patent Congress Books, made by braiding or weaving India Rubber in such way as to cause a shir or contraction, or expansion of the fashric with the spring, this notice is given that any mode of covering and combining fibrous materials with cords of India Rubber, if med in making Congress Boots, its a direct and positive violation of my patent; and whoever manufacturer or sells the Congress Boots, thus made, will be prosecuted for damages. All who are authorized by me to use age required to stamp each pair with the words. "Day's Patent:" all others are infringements, and dealers are warned against the consequences if they choose to be concerned in pirating this patent. Knowing that the combination are attempting, through their instruments, to mislead unsuspecting shoe dealers and manufacturers. I have, for their information, caused the opinion of two of the most distinguished Patent Lawyers in the United States to be taken—berowith published. I shall hold every dealer responsible where the manufacturer is irresponsible. HORACE H. DAY. Owner of all the Patents connected with Congress Boots. N. B.—Licenses granted at 23 Cortlandt atreet, New York, and by my authorized agents throughout the United States, except Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire, owned by Charles Winslow, of Lynn, Mass.

IEGAL OPINIONS.—I have examined the letters Patent is anned to Dupont & Hyatt, bearing date the 20th October, 1840, and am of opinion that the use of elastic gores, made by weaving fibrous materials which expand and centract, in combination with India Rubber Springs, if applied in the Patent. New York, April 28, 1851. F. B. CUTTING.

HOGOTON, June 6, 1851.—I have made as similar examination of the letters Patent, above referred to, and concur in Mr. Cutting's opinion.

THE SWEDISH ASTROLOGER.—ASTROLOGY AND Geomancy, by a lady. Addressed to Dr. C. W. Roback, No. 6 White street, New York.

Prince of Astrologers! for thee Lies open the book of deetiny, Kingdoms and States to the yet Their future history surphy; And all the stars that at our birth Are set to rule our fate on earth Thou canst interpret, and aright Translate the language of their light. Descended from a line of seers, Prophets for near two hundred years, Rare are thy gifts the sick to cure. This do I know, for it was mine To call upon the art divine—

To own its use, its influence feel, And prove that it indeed was real. From a sick bed raised up, I cry To others, "Wherefore will ye die!" Though useless other treatment be, Try, cre too late, Astrology.

To Dr. Roback tell your pains. And, while the auspiclous planet reigns, He will relieve, revive, restore.

I VERY MAN HIS OWN INSURER.—BUILDING ASsociations Fire Insurance Company.—Those persons who are about subscribing to the stock of this company, had better do so immediately, as about two-thirds of the shares are aircady taken, and the books will most likely be closed by the end of the week. This is the only opportunity that has ever been offered where a man of small means could take a few shares in an Insurance Company, and receive back in dividends the premium he pays on his insurance, making him in reality his own insurer. From the business we have already to commence with, and calculations that have been made, it is anticipated that this company will pay the largest dividend ever paid by any insurance company in the city of New York, or in the United States. The second instalment of $1.59 per share will be due and payable on the 15th, at the Mercantile Bank, corner of Broadway and John streets, Persons can subscribe on citter of the Director's books, or

The Queen of Madagascar, a troublesome female potentate, died in November last, after the defeat and degradation of the flower of her army in a contest with a belligerent chief. The death of this Queen will by many be received as a trivial occurrence, though it is in fact one of importance. By this event, as by that of the late King of Siam, an exclusive and obstructive policy is abolished, and under a liberal successor there is every prospect of a fertile country being thrown open to our trade. The dvancement of Madagascar, now seemingly unchecked, will influence not only the Mauricius and Natal, but will be a means of creating trade on the African cast coast, so long lost sight of by the commercial world. The Portuguese monopolists have yielded their supremacy in presence of the Imam of Muskat, the slave trade has fallen before the English and American cruisers, the head waters of the great rivers of that continent have become known to our explorers, and a period has arrived when a new world, possessing great natural advantages, will be opened to our enterprise.

Mazzini in England.

[From the London Examiner.]

We have already described the orations of M. Mazzini in London, Manchester, and other parts of the country, against the Austrian and Papal governments, and appealing to the people of England for sympathy and aid. He has again returned to town, and this week, at the Freemasons' Tavern, delivered, or rather read, a lecture, which contained a very long detailed exposition of his viewf, and hopes of Italian liberty, to the Association of the Friends of Italy. M. Mazzini's doctrines, like those of M. Kossuth, are in favor of non-intercention, to be obtained by the moral power of England, who might wark Russia and France—the one against interfering with Hungary, the other against crushing freedom in Italy. By such aid England would scarre the religious and commercial liberty of his country. The expose concluded by a warm and energetic appeal to the English nation at large, to members of Parliament, to the journals, and to the capitalists, in favor of the cause of Italy. The room was crowded to excees, and the lecture was frequently interrupted by the playetis of the houses.

OBINIONS OF THE PRESS.

[From the London Times, Feb. 25.] The arrangements of the Derby administration are now complete, and a new household bas started into extetence with the same readiness as the Cabinet. It is diffleult to be particular as to the special aptitude of this ing the importance of the office itself. There are figure parts in the State as well as on the stage, for which a very average amount of personal recommendations will suffice. Leaving therefore, most of the respectable walk-ing gentlemen in the list before us to speak for thomselves, we will single out those which may call for a pearing remark. We have no objection at all, then, that our old friend Mr. G. F. Young should take a few lessons at the Beard of Trade, and acquire in that school a better stock of commercial statistics, as well as a better disposition to apply them to the general good of the public. The best things we can wish for chaos are order and light, and we shall not despair of seeing even the honorable member for Scarborough methodical, lucid, and sound. The household seems very much like other households, and, so long as due regard is paid to the dignity and convenience of the crown, as well as of the privileged few that are admitted to the presence of royalty, the great mass of the people has little to do with the matter, Ireland is a more important affair. The Eart of Eqlington is chiefly known by his tournament, which would have gone off admirably but for the rain. If he could persuade the frish to settle their quarrels in the same bloodless fachion, he will considerably eclipse the glorian of that minde chivalry. Chief Justice Blackburne, if he accepts Lord Derby's offer, will make an excellent Irish Chanceller. Lord Stanley, the new Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, has probably enjoyed as much direct preparation for that office as the distinguished excavate of the Assyrian marbles. Sir F. Theeger is Attorney General, it is said, with a view to the Speakership of the House of Commons in the new Parthament, should the fates he so far propitious. Lord Lyndhurst declines office, but premises his support, as also, it is rather superfluously added, does the Duke of Richmond.

The note of preparation has already been sounded for the forthcoming war. The electors of Marylebone and Fin-hony—that is, the very snug parties of gentlemen, who, somewhere or other, assemble now and then to pass thodical, lucid, and sound. The household seems very who, somewhere or other, assemble now and then to per-resolutions, publish manifestoes, and territy ministers-have met, as usual, to protest against a change which seems from their tone to have come rather suddenly upon them. As they place the whige and the conservatives under a common anathema, and are far more horrified at the ghost of the new reform bill than at the presage of protection, we are not prepared to state the particular plan of operations with which they intend to recommence the session.

protection, we are not prepared to state the particular plan of operations with which they intend to recommende the serious. An evening contemporary, which seems as much astounded at these events as the metropolitan politicians we have mentioned, is "pleased to hear that whatever doubt exists on this subject (that is, the future course of the new cabinet) will be dissipated immediately after the re-election of the new ministers, by the introduction of a resolution pledging the House of Commons to free trade," On the other hand, the inhabitants of Manchester, who are, at least, as thorough freetraders as those of Marylebone, or as our energetic contemporary, have resolved not to renew the league till there shall appear some occasion for it, but simply to empower the counsel of the last league to watch the proceedings of the new administration, with some very proper hints as to what may be expected, should the new Premier venture to reopen the great question. On the side of the new government, and in its supposed interest, there is an equal variety of amnouncement. In the familiar columns of one judicious contemporary we already see the watchword "Death or Protection," and the public are assured that Lord Derby and his colleagues are prepared to risk all their magnificent prospects, as well as the safety of the empire, noxice work, or to-morrow, if possible, on an express demand for a good duty on corn.

contemporary we already see the watchword. Death or Protection, and the public are assured that Lord Dorby and his colleagues are prepared to risk all their magnincent prospects, as well as the safety of the empire, next week, or to-merrow, if possible, on an express demand for a good duty on even.

To such as are still hesitating how to greet the new administration—that is, whether with a brief tolerance or with instant defance—we beg to repeat the views we have strendy expressed on this subject. There are two motives for political neticine, and only two, that apply to the present question—the first, political feeding; the second, a calculation of the public advantage. Now, is there a percentrory all on any man's conscience to drive the new ministers at once from their places, and, with that view, to compel them to declare thumselves? It may be a sacred duty to each once especially when the object is to make a man belle himself or hamper himself—to do wrong either in one way or another. We see no "call" in the matter, except that mission which the proverb assigns to fools—of asking questions which the proverb assigns to fools—of asking questions which will require time to make it as it ought to be made. The second motive applicable to the subject is the public convenience. But where is the possible advantage to the community at large, of driving the new government from power, without reasonable notice, by a species of forelike ejectment? Why should we grudge twenty or thirty new hands a little taste of file? The nation surely is not specially interested in conferring a perpetual monopoly of power on a small clique, consisting of a few noble families, respectable as they are, and valuable astimic or the whole of the Legislature and particularly to those who have semething like political prospects of their own, that all monopoly of power on a small clique, consisting of a few noble families, respectable as they are, and valuable as the rate of one in five years, political prospects, the house of the public, if n
